WASHINGTON PAINTINGS. (From the New York Tribune.)

An interesting and historically unique collection of paintings has just been presented to the Cullom Memorial Hall, at West Point, by P. Kemble Paulding. In 1835 a life of Washington was written by James Kirke Paulding, father of P. Kemble Paulding, and published by the Harper Brothers. In mection with the preparation of this work the author, who was afterward Secretary of the Navy under President of the Paulding family, and will in the future be on public ex-hibition in the Memorial Hall, at West Point, which is devoted to matters relating solely to American history.

Van Bureu, commissioned John G. Cuanman, the artist, to paint a series of pictures relating to the life of Washington, and among others to make a copy f Peale's celebrated portrait of the General, in the uniform of a colonel of Provincials, and which is the earliest portrait of Washington, having been painted at Mount Vernon in 1772, when he was forty years old. The copy was made by Chapman at Arliogton, by permission of the Custis family. All of these paintings have since then continued in the possession of the Paulding family.

The subjects are:

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelons medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. At a subsequent meeting of the council col Mr. S. att, from the special committee, laid before the body the following letter and asked that it be spread upon the journal:
